April 1st

Sir.

Having heard that Wm. B. White has been exonerated from the charges that had been made against him, I respectfully suggest that his suspension should be reconsidered. At the same time I may say that his services will not be needed in the sweep cellar, where he was prior to his suspension, for before that period a series of improvements was contemplated whereby one hand was to be dispensed with. These changes are now nearly complete, so that only the two hands now there, with their long experience, will be amply sufficient for the work.

Respectfully yours

J. H. Booth
